AbsoluteSKY Supplies Universal Surveillance, General Dynamics with RFID Solution

Installing of RFID-based Security System at General Dynamics Facility

(Montreal, May 31, 2007) –AbsoluteSKY, Inc. (OTO:ABSY), today announced that, under contract from its reseller Universal Surveillance Systems EAS Inc. (U.S.S. Corporation), it has installed an RFID-based security system at a General Dynamics Ordnance and Tactical Systems facility in Quebec, Canada. This important installation marks the first defense-related application of a sub-system of AbsoluteSKY’s powerful intelliTRACKER product suite that entered the market earlier this year.

Developed primarily to accurately track inventory at long-ranges and in real-time for the retail industry, intelliTRACKER comprises several modules and subsystems, one of which enables the tracking of personnel as they enter specific zones or restricted areas. Combining the inherent benefits of long range RFID with the system’s deep software application, users of intelliTRACKER are able to receive instant alerts and detailed reports regarding the movements of personnel in security-sensitive environments.

AbsoluteSKY is working closely on this contract with its strategic partner, Universal Surveillance Systems, an established leader in providing intelligent security solutions with unsurpassed service to a growing list of customers since 1996.

“We’re delighted and honored to have the opportunity to bring this capability to such a prestigious and exacting customer as General Dynamics”, remarked John Frabasile, President and CEO of AbsoluteSKY. “Obviously, being defense-related, we can’t say much about the contract, but suffice to say we are very enthusiastic about the enormous potential for our system in this important market.”
